

What to do if you suspect your child has a hearing or vision impairment

If you are worried about your child's hearing, take them to your GP for a referral to your local audiology department. They will be able to test your child's hearing and give a diagnosis.

If you are worried about your child's vision, visit a local optician or seek a referral from your GP to your local ophthalmology department.

If your child does have a hearing or vision impairment fill in our attached referral and consent form or ask your child's school to do so.
